About iMAP

The Internet Monitoring Action Project (iMAP) aims to establish regional and in-country networks that monitor network interference and restrictions to the freedom of expression online in 10 countries: Myanmar, Cambodia, Hong Kong, India, Indonesia, Malaysia, Philippines, Thailand, Timor-Leste, and Vietnam. Sinar Project is currently working with national digital rights partners in these 10 countries. The project is done via Open Observatory Network Interference (OONI) detection and reporting systems, and it involves the maintenance of test lists as well as the collection and analysis of measurements.

More information is available at imap.sinarproject.org. Any enquiries and suggestions about this report can be directed to team@sinarproject.org.

About Sinar Project

Sinar Project is a civic tech initiative that uses open technology, open data, and policy analysis to systematically make important information public and more accessible to the Malaysian people. It aims to improve governance and encourage greater citizen involvement in the public affairs of the nation by making the Parliament and the Malaysian Government more open, transparent, and accountable. More information is available at <https://sinarproject.org>.

The state of Selangor has the highest population composition at 21.6 percent, followed by Johor at 12.3 percent and Sabah at 10.8 percent. The population density is also different: Kuala Lumpur has the highest population density of 8,235 per square meter, followed by Putrajaya at 2,017, and Penang at 1,718 per square meter. The largest state, Sarawak, has the lowest with 20 people per square kilometer. This is followed by the third largest state, Pahang, at 45 people and the second largest state, Sabah, at 48 people.<sup>7</sup>

Political Landscape

From 2018 to 2023, Malaysia was in a state of political instability as the country underwent four changes of government in a five-year period. Malaysia is currently under a new unity government led by the 10th Prime Minister, Anwar Ibrahim, who began his office on 24 November 2022.

Since gaining independence in 1957, Malaysia has been ruled by the National Front (Barisan Nasional, also known as BN) coalition until 2018 when the Alliance of Hope (Pakatan Harapan, also known as PH) coalition took over after successfully gaining the majority seats during the 14th General Election. The PH administration lasted for only 22 months and collapsed after many of its key members changed alliances, causing PH to lose its majority.

In March 2020, the National Alliance (Perikatan Nasional, also known as PN) replaced the PH administration. It was led by Muhyiddin Yassin, who is the President of the Malaysian United Indigenous Party (Parti Pribumi Bersatu Malaysia, also known as BERSATU), a then-member of the PH coalition. His administration was also short-lived. After 17 months in office, he resigned from the position in August 2021 due to instability within the PN coalition with the withdrawal of support by United Malays National Organisation (UMNO), a party aligned with PN.

Following Muhyiddin's resignation, the Yang di-Pertuan Agong appointed a new Prime Minister in August 2022: Ismail Sabri, who is the Vice President of the United Malays National Organisation (UMNO), a component party of the BN coalition. The selection process was by way of submission of Statutory Declarations from all the Members of Parliament on their respective choice of Prime Minister to and verified by the King.<sup>8</sup>

In October 2022, Ismail Sabri called for the Parliament to be dissolved after 15 months in office to make way for the national general election. The 15th national general election held on 19 November 2023 saw no single party or coalition gaining the simple majority, resulting in a hung parliament for the first time in Malaysian history. After days of negotiations among political parties, Anwar Ibrahim successfully obtained support from BN, Sarawak Parties Alliance (Gabungan Parti Sarawak, also known as GPS), Heritage Party (Warisan), Malaysian United Democratic Alliance (MUDA), Parti Bangsa Malaysia, and other

Legal environment

(No updates)

The Federal Constitution expressly guarantees the right to freedom of expression under Article 10.<sup>9</sup> Under the objects of the Communications and Multimedia Act (CMA) 1998, it is expressly stated that the act does not permit the censorship of the internet, under Section 3(3). The Malaysian Government has also provided guarantees to companies with Malaysia Digital status [formerly known as Multimedia Super Corridor (MSC)], ensuring that the internet will not be censored under Bill of Guarantees (BoGs), except for illegal, obscene, or indecent materials or any other actions that are deemed illegal in the physical world.<sup>10</sup>

Restrictions to freedom of expression online can be seen in the use of Sections 211 and 233 of the CMA 1998, Sedition Act 1948, Penal Code, Section 114A of the Evidence Act 1950.

Communications and Multimedia Act 1998

Update: A bill was passed prior to the 15th national general election to amend the Communications and Multimedia Act 1998, but it is currently under review by the new unity government. Information about the specifics of the amendments is yet to be publicly revealed. The current Ministry of Communications and Digital is considering amendments that would allow the Malaysian Communications and Multimedia Commission (MCMC) to be given more powers and increase the penalty under Section 233.<sup>11</sup>

Both Sections 211 and 233 are applied in regulating offensive content on the internet that are deemed to be “indecent, obscene, false, menacing, or offensive in character with intent to annoy, abuse, threaten or harass any person”. Section 211 deals with the prohibition of provision of such offensive content, whilst Section 233 deals with the improper use of network service or application service to carry out such offence through communication. Both sections carry a maximum penalty of RM50,000 or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

Sedition Act 1948

(No updates)

Section 4(1) covers a range of actions that reflects “seditious” tendency, including carrying out actions or uttering seditious words and publishing or importing seditious publications.

This section has been challenged to be unconstitutional and void in the past but ruled otherwise by the Federal Court. While not specifically stated, it has been applied to publications made online.<sup>12</sup> Malaysian artist Fahmi Reza was investigated under Section 4(1) of the Sedition Act 1948 and Section 233 of the Communications and Multimedia Act 1998 over his satirical drawing posted online that depicted a cartoon ape in royal attire.<sup>13</sup>

Penal Code

(No updates)

Several sections of the Penal Code have been used in the past against online users for contents posted online, notably Section 298A for online contents alleged to be insulting Islam<sup>14</sup>, Section 500 for criminal defamation over an online graphic resembling the then Health Minister Dr Adham Baba,<sup>15</sup> and Section 505 for “statements conducing to public mischief” over a blog post written by a politician of an opposition party in criticism of the ruling government.<sup>16</sup>

Evidence Act 1950

(No updates)

Evidence Act 1950 does not impose punishment on offenses carried out in the online space, but the amendment that came into force in 2012 with the introduction of Section 114A has a direct impact on online users. Under Section 114A, a person is deemed to be the publisher of online content if the person’s identity is shown to possess control over the content, if the content originates from the network subscribed under the name of the person, or if the content originates from the computer in custody of the person. This presumption is problematic as it could lead to a situation where a person could be found responsible over actions committed online by another using the person’s computer or the person’s network. For instance, the local online news portal Malaysiakini was found to be liable for contempt of

Reported Cases of Internet Censorship

The Ministry of Communications and Multimedia (MCMC) does not publish a list of blocked sites; however, statements have been released from time to time to announce the number of sites blocked. It was revealed that 6,381 websites promoting online gambling were blocked between 2020 to 2022.<sup>18</sup>

In April 2023, all telecommunication companies were directed by the MCMC to block any short message services containing any URL link as a measure to prevent online fraud.<sup>19</sup> Additionally, the Malaysian government has made attempts to remove online contents, but it does not have direct control over contents hosted on platforms registered outside of Malaysia.<sup>20</sup>

On 19 January 2023, local indie film Mentega Terbang was made available for streaming through the Viu streaming service platform,<sup>21</sup> but it was subsequently taken down on 27 February 2023 by the platform itself. Clips of the film went viral and drew criticisms for touching on Muslim sensitivity. Producers of the film faced both online and physical attacks.<sup>22</sup> They were also investigated under Sections 298A and 505(b) of the Penal Code and Section 233 of the Communications and Multimedia Act 1998.<sup>23</sup> The Minister of Home Affairs made an order under the Film Censorship (Prohibition) Order 2023 to ban Mentega Terbang from being exhibited, displayed, distributed, possessed, circulated, or sold.<sup>24</sup>

The first quarter of 2023 recorded a fixed broadband penetration rate of 48.6% per 100 premises and mobile broadband penetration rate of 132 per 100 inhabitants. For fixed broadband, Kelantan has the lowest penetration rate at 24.8%, followed by Sabah at 29.7% and Pahang at 30.9%, while Putrajaya has the lowest mobile broadband penetration rate at 95.4%, followed by Labuan at 97.9% and Sabah at 100.2%.<sup>26</sup>

Malaysia has 42,588,600 4G mobile broadband subscriptions and 1,030,000 5G mobile broadband subscriptions. The highest 4G mobile broadband coverage areas are Kuala Lumpur and Putrajaya, both at 100%; this is followed by Selangor and Pulau Pinang, both at 99.9%.<sup>27</sup>

Internet and mobile service providers in Malaysia are privately-owned except for Telekom Malaysia, whose majority shareholder consists of Khazanah Nasional, the investment holding arm under the Malaysian government. Telekom Malaysia is the largest broadband provider.<sup>28</sup> Following the successful merger of Celcom and Digi in December 2022, they are now the largest mobile broadband provider and largest local-listed tech company in Malaysia,<sup>29</sup> but maintain their separate brands on the market.

Findings on Internet Censorship in Malaysia

All of the findings are based on data collected through OONI from 1 July 2022 to 30 June 2023.

Blocking of Websites

Throughout the one-year period, 6,591,418 million measurements from 4,200 inputs of URL were tested. As of 30 June 2023, the test list contained 1,629 websites in the Global Test List and 525 websites in the Malaysia Test List.

Based on the OONI measurements, the following terms are used in this report:

- Measured or Measurement Counts: Refers to the total number of measurements collected through the OONI Probe.
- Blocked: Refers to “Confirmed Blocked” in OONI Measurement, which are measurements from websites automatically confirmed to be blocked (e.g., a block page was served).
- Likely Blocked: Refers to “Anomaly” and “Failure” in OONI Measurement. Anomalies are measurements that show signs of potential blocking; however, false positives can occur. Failures refer to failed experiments in OONI testing, although they can sometimes be symptomatic of censorship.

The table below summarises the results of testing:

	Jul-Sep 2022	Oct-Dec 2022	Jan-Mar 2023	Apr-Jun 2023	Total
Measured	1,816,719	1,587,905	1,586,839	1,600,015	6,591,418

ASNs	15	20	14	17	28

Table 3: Summary of OONI web connectivity measurements for Malaysia from 1 July 2022 to 30 June 2023.

These measurements were analysed using the heuristics mentioned in Annex IV. It was found that there were 530 blocked websites that were confirmed by OONI. The full list of these confirmed blocked websites can be found in Annex I.

The top three categories of websites found with the highest percentage of blocked and likely blocked measurements are pornography, gambling, and online dating websites. DNS tampering is the main method used for censorship in the blocking of websites.

Table 5: Inputs of political criticisms websites found to be blocked in Malaysia.

Compared to the 2022 report findings, most blocked websites are the same, except for the Malaysia Today website, which is a new addition to the blocked list.

Malaysia Today

The Malaysia Today website (<https://www.malaysia-today.net/>) is a news blog run by Malaysian political commentator and blogger Raja Petra Kamaruddin, who is now residing in England. In 2009, charges were made against him for alleged publications containing seditious and defamatory content. Arrest warrants were reportedly issued for his failure to appear in court, which was said to be the reason for him leaving Malaysia.<sup>30</sup>

The website was first detected to be blocked on 16 October 2022, and it continues to be blocked at the end of the coverage period. Instances of blockings were found on several networks, namely: U Mobile (AS38466), TM (AS4788), Digi (AS4818), and Maxis (AS9534). There was no official reason given for the blocking of the website.

However, the website was intermittently blocked during the coverage period. After the blocking was first seen on 16 October 2022, the site was found to be fully accessible after 23 days from 9 November 2022 onwards. There were then several instances of blockings found on 11 November, 18 November, 27 November, 1 December, and 12 December 2022. During the period of blocking in October 2022, Raja Petra had claimed that the Malaysia Today website was pro-government, i.e., the BN administration led by previous Prime Minister Ismail Sabri.<sup>31</sup> The articles published on Malaysia Today in the days before the first blocking was detected on 16 October 2022 were mostly surrounding the topic of general elections.

In 2023, blockings were found again intermittently between 15 to 17 January 2023, 29 January 2023 to 2 February 2023, and 8 February 2023 to 16 February 2023. A surge of blockings was found again from 23 June 2023 onwards until the end of the coverage period. On 20 June 2023, before the blockings were detected in June 2023, Raja Petra through his social media published several videos calling for the resignation of Anwar Ibrahim from the position of Prime Minister, and he alleged that Royal Malaysia Police and the government did not allow him to return to Malaysia. The Home Minister denied the latter and commented that Raja Petra should have used the proper channels of communication, instead of expressing his thoughts through social media.<sup>32</sup>

MalaysiaNow

MalaysiaNow is a new addition to the blocked list of websites. It is perceived to be pro-PN based on its publications, but the site claims to be neutral. In several instances in the past, MalaysiaNow was the first news site to expose several alleged dealings among politicians.

The blockings were first detected on 28 June 2023 and ended after about 48 hours on 30 June 2023. The blockings were found to be implemented by Celcom (AS10030), TM(AS4788), Digi (AS4818), Maxis (AS9534), TIME (AS9930), and U Mobile (AS38466). A more detailed description of the blockings can be found at <https://imap.sinarproject.org/news/blocking-of-malaysianow-website>. After receiving public backlash, the Communications and Digital Minister Fahmi Fadzil claimed that he had not given any order whatsoever for the blocking of MalaysiaNow while indicating that the Malaysian Communications and Multimedia Commission (MCMC) has the authority to do so. As of 30 July 2023, the Malaysian Communications and Multimedia Commission (MCMC) did not respond to MalaysiaNow's query on the reason behind the blocking. According to MalaysiaNow, the blocking started on 27 June 2023.<sup>33</sup> Among the news articles published by MalaysiaNow in the morning of the day of blocking, one news article zoomed in on a TikTok

These websites listed above had been reported in the 2022 edition of The State of Internet Censorship report. The Justice for sisters website was found to be blocked only on 19 November 2022 on TM (AS4788). An article titled “Preliminary Analysis: LGBTphobia in Malaysia 15th General Elections (GE15)” was published on the same day. The article concerns the manifestation of anti-LGBT expression narratives during the period surrounding the 15th general elections in Malaysia.

Blocking of Instant Messaging Apps

There is no instance of confirmed blocking found in the measurements on WhatsApp, Facebook Messenger, Signal, or Telegram during the coverage period.

Note:

1. Failed measurements are discarded from this table.
2. As the updates on these apps are beyond OONI's control, the OONI probe may experience issues in testing due to app changes that happen from time to time. Hence, failed measurements or anomalies that were identified as false positives were discarded from the table.

Blocking of Circumvention Tools

No instance of confirmed blocking was found in the measurements of Psiphon, Tor, or Tor Snowflake during the coverage period. However, a large number of anomalies were found in the measurements for Tor and Tor Snowflake, which may be false positives as they were also noticed in a few other countries on OONI Explorer.

Acknowledgement of Limitations

- Period of study

This study's findings are limited to network measurements that were collected from 1 July 2022 to 30 June 2023 in order to examine the most recent censorship trends and events.

- Vantage points

Although the network measurements were collected from 28 vantage points in Malaysia, testing using the OONI software was not done consistently across all networks.

- Use of input/URL as unit of measurement of websites

In general, “URL” (or in OONI’s terms – input) and “domain” are interchangeable terms used to refer to a website. In the OONI test list, full URLs are input in the probe to be tested for censorship, similar to an URL starting with “https” or “http” in a browser. The censorship can involve tampering of DNS, HTTP, or other types of censorship. Depending on the method, the blocking can either be at the URL or domain level. However when analysing results on OONI, the reader needs to note that there are differences in the numbers with respect to the specific input or domain.

In the 2022 report, domain was used as a unit of measurement of a website so as to reduce duplicates when measuring the number of websites blocked. For this 2023 report, however, input is used instead as it may give more context as to why the web page is blocked and would be categorized more accurately according to the CitizenLab test lists, which are in the format of URL. To better understand the findings on the state of censorship, percentage of blocked or likely blocked were used instead of actual counts based on OONI test results.

- Differences in numbers with OONI data

The findings in this report have been further processed from OONI’s data whereby more confirmed blockings were obtained and false ones eliminated through additional heuristics and manual verification by iMAP researchers based on country or local context. While these heuristics will eventually be added to OONI’s fingerprints, OONI will only process them for future testing.

Additionally, iMAP researchers have categorised blocked websites that were not part of the CitizenLab test lists but were tested on OONI via custom test lists.

Hence, the figures in this report may differ from the results on the OONI Explorer.

- Testing of instant messaging apps and circumvention tools

The instant messaging apps and circumvention tools included in this report are limited to those tested on OONI. Therefore, they may not reflect the state of censorship of apps more commonly used in these countries.

Conclusion

The data obtained during the June 2022 to July 2023 coverage period revealed that censorship remains heavily focused on pornography and gambling sites that fall within the scope of illegal and indecent content. Despite a change of government, political criticism sites and news media sites continue to experience censorship, without reasons being made known to the public on the offending content that led to the blocking of the website. The blockings of Malaysia Now and Malaysia Today by the new administration suggests a worrying trend. Without official disclosure of the reasons or contentious content that led to the blockings of these websites, it is not known whether the actions taken by MCMC were justified or proportionate.

Despite the merger of Digi Telecommunications and Celcom Axiata forming the largest telco in Malaysia, they maintain their separate brands on the market. There were instances of varied treatment of censorship from Digi and Celcom, suggesting that different personnels were in control of implementation of the blockings upon order by MCMC.

Contribute to the study

If you would like to contribute to the OONI measurements, there are several ways to get involved:

- Testing: You may test on various platforms, both on Mobile (iOS and Android) and Desktop, including on the CLI on Linux platforms. The domains you test can be either randomly selected from the Citizenlab Test Lists or custom test lists specific to your needs.
- Contribute to the test lists: You can contribute to the test lists on GitHub or on OONI.
- Translation: Translate the OONI Probe to your local language here.
- Join the community: Participate in community discussions on the OONI Slack channel.

Acknowledgements

We would like to extend our gratitude to local partners, activists, academicians, researchers, and anonymous users in Malaysia for their assistance in running the OONI Probe.

Annex III: Glossary

DNS	DNS stands for “Domain Name System” and it maps domain names to IP addresses. A domain is a name that is commonly attributed to websites (when they’re created). It allows websites to be more easily accessed and remembered. For example, twitter.com is the domain of the Twitter website. However, computers can’t connect to internet services through domain names. They do so through IP addresses: the digital address of each service on the internet. Similarly, in the physical world, you would need the address of a house (rather than the name of the house itself) in order to visit it. The Domain Name System (DNS) is responsible for transforming a human-readable domain name (such as ooni.org) into its numerical IP address counterpart (in this case:104.198.14.52), thus allowing your computer to access the intended website.
HTTP	The Hypertext Transfer Protocol (HTTP) is the underlying protocol used by the World Wide Web to transfer or exchange data across the internet. The HTTP protocol allows communication between a client and a server. It does so by handling a client’s request to connect to a server, and the server’s response to the client’s request. All websites include an HTTP (or HTTPS) prefix (such as http://example.com/) so that your computer (the client) can request and receive the content of a website (hosted on a server). The transmission of data over the HTTP protocol is unencrypted.
Heuristics	Heuristics obtain further confirmed blockings other than that which are detected based on OONI blocking fingerprints. More detailed explanation is found here.
ISP	An Internet Service Provider (ISP) is an organisation that provides services for accessing and using the internet. ISPs can be state-owned, commercial, community-owned, non-profit, or otherwise privately owned. Vodafone, AT&amp;T, Airtel, and MTN are examples of ISPs.
Middle boxes	A middlebox is a computer networking device that transforms, inspects, filters, or otherwise manipulates traffic for purposes other than packet forwarding.

	Many Internet Service Providers (ISPs) around the world use middleboxes to improve network performance, to provide users with faster access to websites, and for a number of other networking purposes. Middleboxes are sometimes used to implement internet censorship and/or surveillance. The OONI Probe app includes two tests designed to measure networks with the aim of identifying the presence of middleboxes.
TCP	The Transmission Control Protocol (TCP) is one of the main protocols on the internet. To connect to a website, your computer needs to establish a TCP connection to the address of that website. TCP works on top of the Internet Protocol (IP), which defines how to address computers on the internet. When speaking to a machine over the TCP protocol you use an IP and port pair, which looks something like this: 10.20.1.1:8080. The main difference between TCP and (another very popular protocol called) UDP is that TCP has the notion of a “connection”, making it a reliable transport protocol.
TLS	Transport Layer Security (TLS) – also referred to as SSL – is a cryptographic protocol that allows you to maintain a secure, encrypted connection between your computer and an internet service. When you connect to a website through TLS, the address of the website will begin with HTTPS (such as https://www.facebook.com/), instead of HTTP.

Annex IV: Methodology

Data

Data computed based on the heuristics for this report can be downloaded here: <https://github.com/Sinar/imap-data>, whereas aggregated data can be downloaded from OONI Explorer.

Coverage

The iMAP State of Internet Censorship Country Report covers the findings of network measurement collected through the Open Observatory of Network Interference (OONI) OONI Probe App that measures the blocking of websites, instant messaging apps, circumvention tools and network tampering. The findings highlight the websites, instant messaging apps, and circumvention tools confirmed to be blocked, as well as ASNs with censorship detected and the methods of network interference applied. The report also provides background context on the network landscape combined with the latest legal, social and political issues and events which might have an effect on the implementation of internet censorship in the country.

In terms of timeline, this iMAP report covers measurements obtained in the one-year period from 1 July 2022 to 30 June 2023. The countries covered in this round are Cambodia, Hong Kong (China), India, Indonesia, Malaysia, Myanmar, Philippines, Thailand, Timor-Leste and Vietnam.

How are the network measurements gathered?

Network measurements are gathered through the use of the OONI Probe app, a free software tool developed by the Open Observatory of Network Interference \(OONI\). To learn more about how the OONI Probe test works, please visit <https://ooni.org/nettest/>.

iMAP Country Researchers and anonymous volunteers run the OONI Probe app to examine the accessibility of websites included in the Citizen Lab test lists. iMAP Country Researchers actively review the country-specific test lists to ensure up-to-date websites are included and context-relevant websites are properly categorised, in consultation with local communities and digital rights network partners. We adopt the approach taken by Netalitica in reviewing country-specific test lists.

It is important to note that the findings are only applicable to the websites that were examined and do not fully reflect all instances of censorship that might have occurred during the testing period.

How are the network measurements analysed?

OONI processes the following types of data through its data pipeline:

Country code

By default, OONI collects the code corresponding to the country from which the user is running OONI Probe tests from. It does so by automatically searching for it based on the user's IP address through their ASN database and the MaxMind GeoIP database.

Autonomous System Number (ASN)

By default, OONI collects the Autonomous System Number (ASN) of the network used to run the OONI Probe app, thereby revealing the network provider of a user.

Date and time of measurements

By default, OONI collects the time and date of when tests were run in order to determine when network interferences occur and to allow for comparison across time. The time and date data uses UTC as the standard time zone. In addition, the charts generated on OONI MAT exclude measurements on the last day by default.

Categories

The 32 website categories are based on the Citizenlab test lists: <https://github.com/citizenlab/test-lists>. As not all websites tested on OONI are on these test lists, some websites would have unclassified categories.

IP addresses and other information

OONI does not collect or store users' IP addresses deliberately. To protect its users from potential risks, OONI takes measures to remove IP addresses from the collected measurements. However, there may be instances where users' IP addresses and other potentially personally-identifiable information are unintentionally collected, if such information is included in the HTTP headers or other metadata of measurements. For example, this can occur if the tested websites include tracking technologies or custom content based on a user's network location.

Network measurements

The types of network measurements that OONI collects depend on the types of tests that are run. Specifications about each OONI test can be viewed through its git repository, and details about what collected network measurements entail can be viewed through OONI Explorer or through OONI's measurement API.

In order to derive meaning from the measurements collected, OONI processes the data types mentioned above to answer the following questions:

- Which types of OONI tests were run?
- In which countries were those tests run?
- On which networks were those tests run?
- When were the tests run?
- What types of network interference occurred?
- In which countries did network interference occur?
- In which networks did network interference occur?
- When did network interference occur?
- How did network interference occur?

To answer such questions, OONI's pipeline is designed to answer such questions by processing network measurements data to enable the following:

- Attributing measurements to a specific country.
- Attributing measurements to a specific network within a country.
- Distinguishing measurements based on the specific tests that were run for their collection.
- Distinguishing between “normal” and “anomalous” measurements (the latter indicating that a form of network tampering is likely present).
- Identifying the type of network interference based on a set of heuristics for DNS tampering, TCP/IP blocking, and HTTP blocking.
- Identifying block pages based on a set of heuristics for HTTP blocking.
- Identifying the presence of “middle boxes” within tested networks.

According to OONI, false positives may occur within the processed data due to a number of reasons. DNS resolvers (operated by Google or a local ISP) often provide users with IP addresses that are closest to them geographically. While this may appear to be a case of DNS tampering, it is actually done with the intention of providing users with faster access to websites. Similarly, false positives may emerge when tested websites serve different content depending on the country that the user is connecting from or when websites return failures even though they are not tampered with.

Furthermore, measurements indicating HTTP or TCP/IP blocking might actually be due to temporary HTTP or TCP/IP failures; they may not conclusively be a sign of network interference. It is therefore important to test the same sets of websites across time and to cross-correlate data before reaching a conclusion on whether websites are in fact being blocked.

Since block pages differ from country to country and sometimes even from network to network, it is quite challenging to accurately identify them. OONI uses a series of heuristics to try to guess if the page in question differs from the expected control, but these heuristics can often result in false positives. For this reason, OONI only confirms an instance of blocking when a block page is detected.

Upon the collection of more network measurements, OONI continues to develop its data analysis heuristics, based on which it attempts to accurately identify censorship events.

Confirmed blocked OONI measurements were based on fingerprints recorded here <https://github.com/ooni/blocking-fingerprints>. These fingerprints are based on either DNS or HTTP blocking. The fingerprints recorded as confirmed blockings are either those implemented nationally or by ISPs.

Hence, the heuristics below were run on raw measurements for all countries under iMAP to further confirm blockings.

Firstly, IP addresses with more than 10 domains were identified. Then, each IP address was checked for the following:

Does the IP in question point to a government blockpage?
Confirmed blocking	What information can we get about the IP by doing a whois lookup?
Governmen t or Local ISP*	CDN / Private IP
Confirmed blocking	Do we get a valid TLS certificate for one of the domains in question when doing a TLS handshake and specifying the SNI
	Yes	No, there were blocking fingerprints found.	No, timed out
False positive	Confirmed blocking	Sampled measurement is analyzed on OONI Explorer.

*Note: In the case of India, there was evidence of popular websites hosting their site on the ISPs network for quicker loading times as the ISPs sometimes offer such edge networking services, hence websites redirected to local websites are only marked as 'Potentially Blocked'.

When blocking is determined, any domain redirected to these IP addresses will be marked as “dns.confirmed”.

Secondly, HTTP titles and bodies were analysed to determine blockpages. This example shows that the HTTP returns the text “The URL has been blocked as per the instructions of the DoT in compliance to the orders of Court of Law”. Any domain redirected to these HTTP titles and bodies would be marked as “http.confirmed”. As a result, false positives are eliminated and more confirmed blockings are obtained.

In the 2022 report, only confirmed blockings based on OONI or new fingerprints were reported. For this round of reporting in 2023, we further identified confirmed blockings by verifying blockings shown in news reports with OONI measurements. This is because there were blockings that could not be identified using the DNS or HTTP fingerprints. Typically, these websites were redirected to an unknown or bogon IP address, or they had other unknown errors that were ambiguous as to whether they were true or false positives of censorship. Hence, based on the news reports where the blocked websites were cited, confirmed blockings were further found by comparing available measurements on OONI. For this study, we marked them as confirmed blockings if there were more than 30 measurements and an anomaly rate of more than 1% throughout the one-year period of study. In addition, we manually checked the OONI measurements by cross-checking across networks, countries, and time periods.
